Reportedly, Yugoslav border units along the Austrian border have recently changed their attitude toward Austrian border authorities. They have become extremely friendly and congenial, endeavoring in every way to maintain good relations with the Austrian border authorities. Thus, when the Austrian border police recently patrolled the border at Langeck, the Yugoslav captain emerged in spite of the fact that he was not called and asked them whether everything was in order. The Yugoslav captain further added that in case of any complaints the Austrian border police should report them to him immediately and he would undertake to make the necessary corrections. "We wish to cooperate with you in the general interest," he told the Austrians. This represents the first instance of a changed attitude on the part of the Yugoslavs. Previously, when the Austrian border police would request to see the Yugoslav officer, the latter was neither called nor would he appear, even if the matter were urgent. The Austrians had always been advised to submit the matter through channels.
